I just spoke to V [REDACTED] last night, she was not in labor. Her attorney told V [REDACTED] that she has nothing to worry about when it comes to the unborn child. She told V [REDACTED] that we (OCY) cannot detain. V [REDACTED] is taking her attorney advice, she is due any day. P [REDACTED] has detention letters at all the local hospitals. V [REDACTED] does not see this coming.

there is a new kinship placement policy that was issued in 12/03 that i remember and might still have a copy of to forward it to the att. it states that the cw can do an "eyeball" check rather than the homestudy rather than place the baby into foster care but i remember when i tried to do that and had the documentation to back it up sue wouldn't let me so i'm going to tell vw's att about it.

You know I'm not in any position to judge who's sin is greater I don't even believe I can weigh it that way aren't all sins equal in the eyes of the Lord? What you are doing is not a sin because you did speak up, several times in vw's defense but what I'm asking is in your christian experience would I be wrong if i tried to help

When you we're talking about Esther today, I thought about what you said. I think too, even though things look bad, and God can make things right, I often think sometimes God expects us to do what's right.

Facts are this; P[REDACTED] has severe mental health issues, Sue does not have the professional aptitude to make the call that she has on VW. Fact these two ladies are taking it upon them self to play god. I sit on my hands, while I know what their doing is wrong. Who's sin is greater, theirs or mine?

I know Zin tell her I said hi. She goes to my old church greater calvary and she was also recently married. If she doesn't remember me tell her Rosy's niece Deanna said hi.

I have learned not to trust! Zin, the new girl is awesome. She is Christian, normal, and believes in empowerment! God sent her to this unit. I can tell she going to be one of us!
